Job posting: Montessori Home School Teacher with Travel
Location: Private residence listed above
Rate of pay: $25/hr minimum, negotiable on experience
Experience: Prior childcare experience required
Prior teaching experience required, min. 1 year

Skills and Qualifications

Successful Montessori homeschool teachers must have a passion for working with children and strong communication skills. Applicants must have a minimum of one year of teaching experience and the following skills:

- Teaching – a great Montessori homeschool teacher is highly engaging and keeps the attention of students during lessons through use of teaching techniques, which are adapted to their students' learning styles
- Time management – every day, homeschool teachers manage a variety of tasks, from teaching and attending events to planning lessons and testing. They keep all these activities organized and handle their responsibilities in a timely way
- Curriculum development – homeschool teachers often pull from multiple sources to create a unified curriculum they use to teach their students
- Physical fitness – a homeschool teacher must be able to see, hear, speak, read, write, walk, sit and stand, and in some cases lift a minimum of 50 pounds
- Communication skills – homeschool teachers communicate often with students, parents, and volunteers, clearly expressing their needs and their students' needs
- Leadership skills – an effective teacher guides their students on the path to success
- Emotional intelligence – flexibility and sensitivity to the feelings and needs of others is a must for homeschool teachers. They must empathize with their students and parents to promote a favorable learning environment
- Fulfilling your duties and responsibilities in this position requires excellent communication skills, the ability to develop individualized lesson plans, a method of evaluating progress, and the ability to adapt teaching techniques.

We are a family of 4: 2 children, 1 boy 3.5 years old and 1 girl 1.5 years old. We're looking for someone that will become part of our extended family, and work with us for many years. We're both self-employed businesspeople who value education and wish to provide our kids with the most enriching Montessori educational experience possible. We like to spend as much time as business will allow at our vacation home in Florida. This is our main reason for wanting to home school. Ideally, our Teacher will travel with us to maintain continuity with teaching, as well as offering the kids new and exciting learning opportunities.

As a start, our Teacher will help to create a fun and inviting school space in our home. From there, we will work together to develop a school routine and curriculum. We are open minded people who want to customize educational content for the kids' unique needs and interests. We want to instill in our children a love, and passion, of learning. It is our belief that a love of learning will allow our children to not only experience a wonderful childhood, but also excel as adults and throughout their lives, in all their future endeavours.

The job may be part-time to start, because our children are still young. However, full-time hours will be required soon. If you're flexible, love working with children and love teaching, please apply to the email above.
